

Accessibility & Cookie Policy

Accessibility

We are committed to making the Scottish Library and Information Council (SLIC) website as easy to use for as many people as possible.

All pages on this site comply with the World Wide Web Consortium (W3C) guidelines and conform to the Web Accessibility Initiative's A rating.

Key Accessibility Features:

- All non-decorative images have associated text.
- All hyperlinks should make sense when read out of context.
- There is primary navigation available on every page to make it easy to move around the website.
- There is breadcrumb navigation on every page which lets you know where you are in the website.

Contact SLIC

If you experience any problems with the SLIC website please let us know by emailing info@scottishlibraries.org

Cookie Policy

How we use cookies

A cookie is a small file which asks permission to be placed on your computer's hard drive. The file is added and the cookie helps analyse web traffic or lets you know when you visit a particular site. Cookies allow web applications to respond to you as an individual. The web application can tailor its operations to your needs, likes and dislikes by gathering and remembering information about your preferences.

We use traffic log cookies to identify which pages are being used. This helps us analyse data about web page traffic and improve our website in order to tailor it to customer needs. We only use this information for statistical analysis purposes and then the data is removed from the system.

Overall, cookies help us provide you with a better website, by enabling us to monitor which pages you find useful and which you do not. A cookie in no way gives us access to your computer or any information about you, other than the data you choose to share with us.

You can choose to accept or decline cookies. Most web browsers automatically accept cookies, but you can usually modify your browser setting to decline cookies if you prefer. This may prevent you from taking full advantage of the website.
